The unit of analysis is the major entity that is being analyzed in a study. It is the 'what' or 'who' that is being studied. In social science research, typical units of analysis include individuals (most common), groups, social organizations and social artifacts.. The literature of international relations provides a good example of units of analysis. In "Man, the State and War", Kenneth N ...

Unit of analysis - Wikipedia

In science and research, an attribute is a characteristic of an object (person, thing, etc.). Attributes are closely related to variables. A variable is a logical set of attributes. Variables can "vary" - for example, be high or low. How high, or how low, is determined by the value of the attribute (and in fact, an attribute could be just the word "low" or "high").

Statistical Methods for the Social Sciences: Stati Metho

Most of you have probably taken a survey at one time or another, so you probably have a pretty good idea of what a survey is. Sometimes students in my research methods classes feel that understanding what a survey is and how to write one is so obvious, there's no need to dedicate any class time to learning about it.

Significância estatística - Wikipedia, a enciclopédia livre

Significância estatística é um termo usado em estatística para descrever a probabilidade de que uma diferença observada entre duas amostras não seja simplesmente o resultado de erro amostral. Em outras palavras, a probabilidade de que a diferença observada seja real e não apenas uma ilusão estatística.
