Human overpopulation (or population overshoot) occurs when the ecological footprint of a human population in a specific geographical location exceeds the carrying capacity of the place occupied by that group. Overpopulation can further be viewed, in a long term perspective, as existing if a population cannot be maintained given the rapid depletion of non-renewable resources or given the ...

Water resources are natural resources of water that are potentially useful. Uses of water include agricultural, industrial, household, recreational and environmental activities. All living things require water to grow and reproduce. 97% of the water on the Earth is salt water and only three percent is fresh water; slightly over two thirds of this is frozen in glaciers and polar ice caps.

Population, economic growth, and patterns of consumption and production all play a role in climate change. But a common mistake is to equate more people with more emissions, while ignoring inequality. Right now, only 2.5 billion people make enough money â€“ more than $10 per day â€“ to consume enough to contribute to emissions.

Introduction. Increasingly, it seems that many analysts within the peacebuilding field predict that future violent conflicts will likely take the form of resource wars “ which can be understood as those conflicts which are primarily waged over access to scarce resources such as rare minerals, water, or oil. [1] The underlying reasoning behind this assumption is that, “ as the global ...
